HISTORY

The Romans had built the first fortification in the 2nd century and later it was home to the Roman legion IV Flaviae which protected the area.

It suffered devastation by Goths, Huns, Avars and Slavs. Sometime during that tumultuous time, the ancient Singidunum was created. It was erected on the very same white ridge after which it was named "BEO-grad" (WHITE-city).

Today the Belgrade fortress comprises of Upper and Lower Town and the vast field in front the very fortress that Turks named "Kalemegdan", joining the words "kale", which means city, fortress and "megdan", the Turkish word for field. The most beautiful and most spacious park in nation's capital once used to be a field where battles were fought with enemies.
